KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

Dr David H. McIntyre, Director of the Texas A&M University Integrative Center for Homeland Security, USA

Dr McIntyre teaches and directs the Graduate Certificate in Homeland Security Program at The Bush School for Government and Public Service at Texas A&M. A nationally recognized expert in national and homeland security, Dr McIntyre has seen extensive Army service and has been working in those areas with senior levels of government for 18 years. Between 2001 and 2003, he served as Deputy Director of the ANSER Institute for Homeland Security, the United States' only not-for-profit think tank specialising in homeland security.

Dr Sandra Bell, Director of Homeland Security and Resilience Department, Royal United Services Institute, UK

Dr Bell's responsibility at the RUSI is to stimulate debate about policy options, technology and practices in homeland security and national resilience. Dr Bell received a PhD in military science from the Royal Military College of Science, Cranfield University, studying personnel blast protection. For five years she ran QinetiQ's (formerly the Defence Research Agency) Evolution of Warfare studies with the Ministry of Defence Policy Directorate. This program included research such as virtually supported wargames into high impact, low probability events, non-lethal warfare and technologies relevant to homeland security in response to the 9-11 attacks.

Deputy Assistant Commissioner Peter Clarke, UK Metropolitan Police

Mr Clarke is Head of the Anti-Terrorist Branch at New Scotland Yard and National Co-ordinator for Terrorist Investigations. His responsibility is to lead and coordinate terrorist investigations in the UK. In this role he was prominent in the response to the terrorist attacks in London on 7 July 2005 and the further attempts of 21 July 2005.

He is a graduate in Law from Bristol University and has an extensive police career, including detective roles involving murder enquiries and international drugs intelligence.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

- Senior representatives from the military and law enforcement communities
- Senior State & Local government administrators
- Strategic and intelligence analysts
- Risk and security managers
- Emergency services and health professionals
- Critical infrastructure owners and operators

RESEARCH NETWORK FOR A SECURE AUSTRALIA

This event is organised by the Research Network for a Secure Australia (RNSA). RNSA is a multi-disciplinary collaboration established to strengthen Australia's research capacity for protecting critical infrastructure (CIP) from natural or human caused disasters including terrorist acts. The RNSA facilitates a knowledge-sharing network for research organisations, government and the private sector to develop research tools, and methods to mitigate emerging safety and security issues relating to critical infrastructure.

Membership of the RNSA is open to Australian and international researchers, industry, government and others professionally involved in CIP research.

Information on joining is at www.secureaustralia.org.
 RNSA Convener: A/Prof Priyan Mendis
 RNSA Outreach Manager: Athol Yates
